Plaintiff In Pro Per,

vs.

ROKOKO ELECTRONICS
(AND DOES 1 THROUGH 50, INCLUSIVE)
DEFENDANT

Case No.: 2:25-CV-05340-ODW-RAO

*[Assigned to Hon. Otis D. Wright, II,
Courtroom 5D; Hon. Rozella A. Oliver,
Courtroom 590]*

OBJECTION TO DEFENDANTS
MOTION FOR EX PARTE EXTENSION OF TIME

State Court Action Filed: May 12, 2025

Removal Date: June 12, 2025

Discovery Cutoff: August 10, 2026

Trial Date: March 9, 2027

Filed concurrently with:
- Walsh Decl. re: Evidentiary Package

I. INTRODUCTION AND SUMMARY

The Defendants continue to say they only have sixteen days to respond to Plaintiff’s motion for summary judgment... However, the hearing was noticed 37 days from the filing date of April 11, 2026. The Defendants sat on their hands for a week while [stating they wished to] seek ex-parte even before the MSJ was refiled. Simply put, their urgency is wholly manufactured to gain a strategic advantage.

Defendants’ position is irreconcilable. They seek emergency relief on the basis that they require additional time to respond to a timely noticed motion. Yet,

1 they have declined to meaningfully participate in discovery for ~seven months
2 while Plaintiff has produced a professional, complete and litigation-ready record of 3 4,000+ pages. Rokoko foreclosed discovery despite agreeing with the Court they 4 would proceed, leaving Plaintiff to painstakingly build the record capable of 5 supporting a dispositive motion without their participation.

8 The Defendants complain that “discovery has only barely begun; ... no
9 depositions have been taken” which is interesting because not only has discovery
10 been open for seven months; Plaintiff has attempted to begin depositions since
11 March and the Defendants failed no less than three deadlines to participate. After 12 continued silence, Plaintiff set a date, noticed them and the Defendants 13 immediately objected, stating the depositions were “not calculated to lead to 14 admissible evidence” (objection removed from FRCP in 2015). When a Motion to 15 Compel was sought, they stated they will not stand for deposition until June 16 instead (Ex. 1). This is another manufactured conflict.
17
18
19
20

21 Having chosen not to develop their own record, Defendants cannot now seek 22 emergency relief from their own choices or shift the consequences of that decision
23 onto Plaintiff. Further, the discovery they now seek—Plaintiff’s personal financial 24 records, cash flow and tax returns, materials from unrelated/ongoing
25 confidential celebrity litigation which Plaintiff is retained, personal 26
27
28

1 communications with family members, and other non-infringement topics—bears
2 no relation to the singularly narrowed issue presented in Plaintiff’s Motion.

4 This is not a situation requiring emergency relief; it is the consequence of 5 Defendants’ own litigation strategy becoming unfavorable to them.

2 II. Defendants Did Not Meet And Confer Before Filing

4 Once again, Rokoko did not meet and confer. However, they state to the Court
5 in their motion: “We attempted to understand the basis of any refusal and Plaintiff
6 did not provide one”. They were given a reason in line with prior orders after the 7 last few denials: “ex-parte is not appropriate”.

9 In all, the Defendants excuses are a gross mischaracterization of the events at 10 hand, which will be detailed herein.

11
12 L.R. 7-19.1 requires reasonable, good faith efforts to orally advise opposing 13 parties of both the date and substance of any proposed ex parte application.
14 Defendants did not comply. Instead—despite the Court’s repeated warnings—pro
15 hac counsel Emily Graue made a single 42-second phone call on April 10, 2026
16 (Ex. 2), which did not address any ex parte application, but merely inquired
17 whether Plaintiff would withdraw his MSJ. Plaintiff did so. He then filed a 18 narrowed, single-claim MSJ. A week later, without further meaningful effort,
19 Defendants sought ex parte relief anyway following only an email requesting 20 stipulation. Such conduct falls well short of L.R. 7-19.1. See UPS Supply Chain
21 Sols., Inc. v. Directed Elecs., Inc., 2022 WL 21785582, at *1 (C.D. Cal. Mar. 7, 22 2022) (“a single perfunctory phone call” is insufficient). This is not an isolated
23 incident. Defendants have repeatedly failed to comply with meet-and-confer
24
25
26
27
28

1 obligations, conduct that has warranted sanctions and striking of filings in similar
2 circumstances. See Clark v. EmCare, Inc., 2017 WL 7858273, at *1 (C.D. Cal.
3 May 9, 2017).

6 III. The Defendants Have Shown No Good Cause For Ex Parte Relief

8 Defendant characterizes the schedule as “extremely short,” yet it provides 9 approximately 37 days to respond—well within the ordinary timeframe for 10 summary judgment briefing. A standard litigation deadline does not constitute 11 irreparable harm. This Courts prior denied the Defendants’ application for this 12 same ex parte relief. The reasonings for that denial are still applicable today:
13

15 In Mission Power Engineering Company v. Continental Casualty Company,
16 the court provided the requirements a party must meet to obtain ex parte relief. 883
17 F. Supp. 488, 492 (C.D. Cal. 1995). Notably, the party seeking ex parte relief must 18 establish why a motion cannot be calendared in a regular manner; that they will be 19 irreparably prejudiced if the motion is heard in accord with regular procedures; and 20 that the requesting party is without fault in creating the crisis that requires ex parte
21 relief or that the crisis was due to excusable neglect. Id. Defendant fails to address
22 Mission Power in their Ex Parte Application. In any event, Defendant falls short of 23 satisfying the Mission Power requirement. Defendant provides no explanation as to 24 why it is unable to timely respond here either. Defendant thus fails to demonstrate 25
26
27
28

1 that it is without fault in creating the crisis or that the crisis occurred as a result of
2 excusable neglect. See Mission Power, 883 F. Supp. at 492.

4 IV. Defendants Originally Sought Ex-Parte Extension On A Full-Case MSJ,
5 Now Still Seek The Same Relief For A Narrower Motion

6 Rokoko has sought ex-parte for weeks even prior to today, but had a pending
7 Rule 11 motion standing in the way for clearly altered evidence they could not
8 explain and refused to produce the natives for. Instead of risking that issue being
9 before the Court, The Defendant chose to wait to seek ex-parte and once Plaintiff
10 filed his MSJ, they did just that:
11
12

13
14 *First (April 10, 2026 / 9am): “Rokoko intends to file an ex parte
15 application requesting that the Court set a briefing schedule on your 16 motion for summary judgment that permits any opposition to be filed
17 at least 45 days after the Court’s ruling on Rokoko’s pending Motion
18 to Dismiss”*
19

21 The Court then hours later ruled on their Motion to Dismiss, yet the Defendant
22 continued e-mailing regarding withdrawal:
23

24
25 *Second (April 10, 2026 / 11:26am): “I presume by now you have seen
26 the Court’s Order from today on Rokoko’s Motion to Dismiss ...*
27
28

1 Please confirm that you will be withdrawing... to refile at a later
2 date”

4 As the Plaintiff was unavailable, the Defense called him (2:18 pm) and then
5 followed up in writing:

7 Third (April 10, 2026 / 2:28pm): “I called you to tell you that we 8 planned to move ex parte for a status conference regarding your 9 Motion for Summary Judgment and asked if you would be
10 withdrawing it. You confirmed that you will be withdrawing the MSJ,
11 and I stated that if that was the case we would not need to move ex
12 parte. Hope you have a good weekend. “

14
15 After several days, Counsel then stated:

16
17 Fourth (April 15, 2026 / 7:32pm): “As you are aware, your recently
18 refiled Motion for Partial Summary Judgment (ECF No. 167)
19 maintains the May 18, 2026 hearing ... this affords Rokoko an
20 extremely short window of time to draft its opposition... Rokoko
21 intends to file an ex parte application requesting that the Court grant
22 a two-week extension for Rokoko to submit its opposition...”

23
24 Defendants’ original ex parte request sought to accelerate a ruling on 25 their Motion to Dismiss (“to obtain clarity and a ruling... before additional 26 dispositive motions”). That ruling issued hours later. Yet Defendants now seek the 27

1 same ex parte relief for a different purpose—an extension of time to oppose a
2 narrowed, single-claim MSJ filed after Plaintiff withdrew the original motion.
4 Across four separate events, the relief sought has remained the same while the 5 justification has shifted.

7 8 V. The Defendants Created The Very Crisis They Seek Relief From

9 This case is far removed from Defendants’ first ex parte request (Dkt.
10 #24, June 20, 2025). Over the past year, Plaintiff has been forced to file multiple 11 motions—including sanctions, motions to compel, and a motion to deem 12 admitted—due to Defendants’ continued refusal to meaningfully participate in 13 discovery. Despite these proceedings, Defendants have remained undeterred, even 14 after representing to the Court on February 4, 2026 that they would proceed with 15 discovery.
16
17 discovery:
18

20 Defendant: “And then once that (protective order) is in place — and 21 we’ll be — we’ll be looking for it and ready to do our part” – Rokoko
22

23 Hon. Oliver: “Then, Ms. Ellena, I assume whatever discovery has 24 been held off, the production has been held off in abeyance until that 25 was issued, then, that can move apace. Does that sound reasonable?”
26

27 Defendant: “It does, your honor.”
28

2 Virtually nothing changed after that discussion. In fact, there are now three
3 pending IDC’s, a Motion to Compel; deemed admitted fully briefed, a forthcoming
4 protective order against the Defendants, and another Motion to Compel being
5 drafted presently. Any argument about lack of discovery, by a non-participating 6 party invoking Rule 56(d) is moot. "A party cannot claim 'irreparable prejudice'
7 from a crisis of its own making. 'The 'irreparable' nature of the [harm]... must be
8 one not caused by the party’s own delay or lack of diligence." See Chivichyan v.
9 W. Heritage Ins. Co., 2012 WL 12882823 (C.D. Cal. 2012). Having sat on their
10 hands for seven months, Defendants cannot now claim the calendar is their enemy;
11 "equity does not come to the aid of those who sleep on their rights" quoting (Lake
12 Mich. Fed. v. US Army Corps of Engineers, 742 F. Supp. 441 (N.D. Ill. 1990))
13
14
15
16

17
18 VI. Plaintiff Over-Complied With Discovery, Defendants Chose Deferral
19

20 Plaintiff, by contrast, produced a complete, litigation-ready discovery record
21 exceeding 4,000 bates-stamped pages, including load files, metadata, responsive
22 indexes, metadata extractions, multi-format conversions and their native
23 counterparts (Ex. 3). The production was sufficiently comprehensive that 24 Defendants’ own expert remarked: "Is this a Relativity production?"
25
26
27
28

1 Defendants conversely have not provided a single compliant document
2 production; producing incomplete to only two RFP's. The Defendants have largely
3 maintained throughout that deferral is preferred while any one of their four Motion
4 to Dismiss' were pending. As their counsel stated: "Our client feels strongly that 5 the motion to dismiss... should be decided before... determining how... whatever 6 may be left should be resolved."
10

11 VII. Defendants Seek an Extension of Time For Their Additionally 12 Propounded ~200 Discovery Requests, While Not Participating
13 Themselves

14 Rokoko has refused to (a) provide a single privilege log while claiming 15 privilege, despite continuous request and; (b) declare any statement of document
16 withholding per Rule 34(b)(2)(C) , despite continuous request and; (c) declare if 17 documents even exist, despite continuous request and; (d) refused to comply with 18 either Plaintiff's or their own ESI protocols and; (e) to follow Court order¹ for -- 19 and Plaintiff's requests -- of native files where the provided documents appear to 20 have been modified across 23 minutes to 1 hour by Defense Counsel:
21
22
23
24

25
26 ¹*"TIFF production may be appropriate...where a party has not requested native
27 production... It is also not improper or inappropriate for Plaintiff to request native production...
28 Defendant agrees to produce ... documents such as Excel files, PowerPoint files, or audio files, in native format"- Dkt #158*

1 “We have confirmed that any change to the metadata was an
2 inadvertent byproduct of the Bates-stamping process. Attached are 3 the same documents that omit the Bates-stamps.” – Rokoko

5 ”I just checked – The metadata is destroyed by Aspose.PDF in these 6 files as well... You may provide bates stamped files, but they must
7 come with untouched natives as well. Please resubmit, [also include
8 the actual operative agreements] from 2020, 2022, 2025” – Plaintiff

10 “We’ve given you what we have, Matt, thanks.” – Rokoko
11

13
14 VIII. The Defendants Are Well Represented And Resourced

15 The Defendants complain that “discovery has only barely begun; ... no
16 depositions have been taken” which is interesting because not only has discovery
17 been open for seven months; Plaintiff has attempted to begin depositions since
18 March and the Defendants failed three deadlines to participate. Plaintiff then 19 unilaterally set a date, noticed them and the Defendants said they will not stand for 20 deposition until June instead claiming they have depositions somehow every day
21 for nearly three months (Ex. 1). This is a manufactured conflict.
22

24 A single pro se Plaintiff simply cannot reasonably be seen to out-resource
25 ReedSmith or multi-national Defendants with a valuation of a quarter billion
26 dollars. “Defendants cannot avoid their duties to respond to Plaintiffs’
27
28

1 otherwise reasonable and targeted discovery requests by failing to dedicate
2 sufficient resources... given [Defendants] resources, Defendants are in a
3 better position than most to muster the necessary resources for the limited
4 discovery at issue here.” (Doe v. Trump, 329 F.R.D. 262, 271 (W.D. Wash.
5 2018)). See also United States v. Eggen, 51 MJ 159 (a litigant cannot create
6 crisis and then take advantage of a situation of his own making; invited crisis
7 provides no basis for relief).

11
12 IX. Further Discovery Will Likely Not Change The Outcome. Plaintiff’s
13 Motion is Admission Based

14
15 Defendants’ opposition cannot be cured by additional discovery.
16 Plaintiff’s Motion is based on Defendants’ own admissions and records,
17 including: that Plaintiff agreed only to 2020 terms; that Defendants collected
18 Plaintiff’s intellectual property and returned portions of it; that Plaintiff
19 never subscribed to any paid collection feature; that Defendants’ own
20 systems nonetheless collected data (“Skip_Data_Sync = False”); and that no
21 license existed permitting such collection, with Defendants unable to 22 identify any applicable agreement beyond 2020. No additional discovery
23 [from Plaintiff] can overcome Defendants’ own admissions, code, and 24 communications.
25
26
27
28

2 X. What The Defendants Are Seeking In Discovery To Defeat This Motion
3 Has Nothing To Do With Intellectual Property Infringement

5 Defendants have already received nearly everything Plaintiff has to offer
6 in discovery. Yet, within days of Plaintiff’s MSJ, they propounded ~200
7 requests—seeking (1) Plaintiff’s personal tax returns, cash flow and personal
8 financial statements (2) confusingly - Defendants’ own financials (3)
9 Plaintiff’s internal security measures including password and encryption (4)
10 privileged communications with non-parties (5) Guest lists & RSVP from 11 Plaintiff’s Hollywood release event (6) confidential and potentially sealed
12 documents from unrelated litigation involving a high-profile celebrity case
13 which Plaintiff is retained:
14
15
16
17
18

19 “RFP No. 94: [All Documents drafted] or signed by You and 20 submitted to the court in Ronald Radke v. Brittany Furlan, Case No.
21 26STRO00192 in the Los Angeles County Superior Court of the State
22 of California”
23

24
25 These requests are overbroad, invasive, and largely irrelevant to the 26 single infringement issue before the Court. Of the ~200 requests, almost 27 none of them even touch copyright infringement as an issue. This is not
28

1 targeted discovery—it is an attempt to burden, harass, oppress and
2 embarrass the Plaintiff and manufacture conflict and delay in response to an
3 admission-based motion.

7 XI. Defendant Is Not Entitled To More Time, Nor Ex-Parte Relief

9 Lastly, the other litigant potentially prevailing on a developed record
10 is not an excuse for an unreasonable extension of time – nor does it rise to 11 the level of ex-parte relief. As this Court has prior said:
12

14
15 “Ex Parte Applications are reserved for extraordinary circumstances 16 and responding to timely-noticed motions do not generate the 17 requisite prejudice required to justify ex parte relief. Both sides also 18 improperly use ex parte applications—which is reserved for 19 extraordinary circumstances—as a mechanism to bypass noticed
20 motion requirements.”*
21

22 That’s what the Defendant seeks to accomplish.
23
24

25 XII. CONCLUSION

26 Defendant’s application for ex-parte relief and an extension of time should 27 be denied.
